

List of Tables and Figures

Table 1	Composition of the recipe for Dresum Chülen Menmar (Three Fruits Elixir Medicine Butter).	73–74
Table 2	Qualities of therapeutic modalities as used to treat nyepa imbalance.	102
Table 3	Four Tantras classification of potency.	103–4
Table 4	Deumar Tenzin Püntsok's taxonomy of potency.	105–6
Table 5	Substance properties classified by elemental dynamics. Courtesy of Somānanda Yogi, 2017; adapted with permission.	110
Table 6	Eight classes of pacification medicine.	115
Fig. 1	The main grinding stone of the Nee Amchi Association (Ogyan Sorig Tsogspa) pharmacy operated by Amchi Nawang Tsing. Nee, Ladakh, October 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	12
Fig. 2	A smaller grinding stone with ground up limestone pieces at the Nee Amchi Association (Ogyan Sorig Tsogspa) pharmacy operated by Amchi Nawang Tsing. Nee, September 2018. Photo courtesy of T.K. Shor (all rights reserved).	13
Fig. 3	Amchi Nawang Tsing's hand holds the pestle; the two rabbit feet are used as brushes. Nee, August 2022. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	13
Fig. 4	Amchi Nawang Tsing grinding herbal raw materials. Nee, August 2022. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	14

List of Tables and Figures

Fig. 5	A large piece of chongzhi rock that Amchi Nawang Tsering carried from the high mountains in Ladakh to his pharmacy. Nee, September 2018. Photo courtesy of T.K. Shor (all rights reserved).	31
Figs. 6–9	Four types of chongzhi used in menjor . Ladakh and Sidhpur, 2018. Photos B. Gerke (figs. 6, 8, 9) and J. van der Valk (fig. 7) (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	34
Fig. 10	Five types of chongzhi samples at the Sowa Rigpa Department at CIBS. Choglamsar, Ladakh, 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	35
Fig. 11	Amchi Tsultim dispenses medicines to a patient in his clinic. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (all rights reserved).	40
Fig. 12	Van der Valk crushes chongzhi rocks into smaller pieces. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	41
Fig. 13	An unprocessed piece of chongzhi . Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	42
Fig. 14	Amchi Tsultim and Gerke prepare crushed chongzhi rocks for boiling. Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	43
Fig. 15	First round of boiling chongzhi . Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	44
Fig. 16	Amchi Tsultim pours out the water after the second round of boiling chongzhi . Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	44
Fig. 17	The water looks clearer after the third round of boiling. Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	44
Fig. 18	The water appears clear after the fourth round of boiling. Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	44
Fig. 19	Grinding the pre-boiled and dried chongzhi pieces by hand into fine powder. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	45
Fig. 20	Sifting the ground-up chongzhi powder. Leh, September 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	45
Fig. 21	View from the rooftop of Amchi Tsultim's clinic. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	46
Fig. 22	Amchi Tsultim mixes boiled dzomo milk with the chongzhi powder. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (all rights reserved).	47

Fig. 23	Chongzhi cakes in the morning after their immersion in the light of the full moon. Leh, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	48
Figs. 24–32	Processing chongzhi with Dr. Penpa Tsiring. Sidhpur, October 24, 2018. Photos B. Gerke (all rights reserved).	50–51
Fig. 33	Extremely finely ground preprocessed chongzhi powder mixed with water to make a yogurt-like paste for pill coating. Nee, August 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	55
Fig. 34	Amchi Nawang Tsiring's layered chongzhi coating; there is already a clear color difference between the uncoated and partially coated batches. Nee, August 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	55
Fig. 35	Amchi Nawang Tsiring immerses partially coated Drupril pills in a chongzhi paste to add another layer. Nee, August 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	55
Fig. 36	Amchi Nawang Tsiring's best quality Drupril with chongzhi coating: milky white and smooth. Nee, August 2022. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	55
Fig. 37	Urgyen Rinpoche's Gompa with the Sowa Rigpa clinic on the right. Shey, September 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	57
Fig. 38	Chongzhi cakes drying inside Urgyen Rinpoche's Gompa. Shey, October 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	57
Fig. 39	Two formulas containing processed chongzhi at Urgyen Rinpoche's Sowa Rigpa clinic. Shey, October 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	58
Fig. 40	The two female amchis working at the busy dispensary of Urgyen Rinpoche's Sowa Rigpa clinic. Shey, October 2018. Photo B. Gerke (all rights reserved).	58
Fig. 41	Lightly coated Drupril pills at Urgyen Rinpoche's Sowa Rigpa clinic. Shey, October 2018. Photo B. Gerke (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	59
Fig. 42	Dr. Pasang shows participants an ingredient he is about to add to the pot for extraction, while a student stirs the mixture clockwise. Jaun, June 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	75

List of Tables and Figures

Figs. 43–45	Steps in buram (jaggery) processing. Photos J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	77
Fig. 46	Cross sections of honglen ( Picrorhiza kurroa ) rhizomes of different sizes; the concentric layers are perceived to resemble the gross anatomy of blood vessels. Jaun, June 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	79
Figs. 47–49	Processing dongga . Jaun, June 2019. Photos J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	81
Fig. 50	Altar with offerings and three plates of the medicinal butter at its center. Jaun, June 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	83
Fig. 51	Early morning session in which workshop participants meditate and recite mantras together. Jaun, June 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	85
Fig. 52	Tidwell grinding nutmeg and caraway seeds with stone in a Sorig Loling class for making hormé ( hor me ) medicinal compresses. Xining, November 2014. Photo courtesy of Kelsang Kyi (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	92
Fig. 53	Class medicinal plant collection for compiling identification samples near Kumbum Monastery's medical college. Kumbum, July 2014. Photo courtesy of Kelsang Metok (all rights reserved).	93
Fig. 54	Aku Nyima initiating a medicinal plant expedition for Qinghai Provincial Tibetan Medical Hospital physicians. Nomad region, Qinghai Province, August 2014. Photo T. Tidwell (all rights reserved).	93
Fig. 55	The six tastes as comprised of the five elemental dynamics. Diagram by Tidwell.	98
Fig. 56	Post-digestive taste profiles produced as reactions of taste profiles to the digestive environment. Diagram by Tidwell.	99
Fig. 57	How nyepa relate to the elemental dynamics and the potencies that treat nyepa characteristics. Diagram by Tidwell.	100
Fig. 58	How excesses in potencies can manifest nyepa disorders. Diagram by Tidwell.	107
Fig. 59	How tastes treat nyepa disorders. Diagram by Tidwell.	107
Fig. 60	The SRIC logo. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	130

Fig. 61	The three highest-ranking SRIC students in the 2018 exams, each holding a Certificate of Appreciation. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	133
Fig. 62	Amchi Urgian Kalzang shows research assistant Khandro Lhamo Yangchen products at his medical clinic. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	136
Fig. 63	Amchi Urgian Kalzang's set of yukchö sticks. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	137
Fig. 64	Cauterization instruments crafted by Amchi Urgian Kalzang and his students. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	137
Fig. 65	The mudbrick oven used for specific processing and extraction procedures at TBSI. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	139
Fig. 66	Amchi Urgian Kalzang's TBSI students lead the performance of the first Yutok Nyingtik offering feast held at SRIC. Kathmandu, September 8, 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (all rights reserved).	143
Fig. 67	A hand-painted picture of the trees of health and disease at SBS. Kathmandu, September 2019. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	145
Fig. 68	Mendrup granules from the 1992 mendrup that were distributed in Nee in 2018. Nee, August 2022. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	156
Fig. 69	“Mother of papta ” molded into the form of Vajrakīlāya and held by Amchi Nawang Tangyas in a gesture of respect. Leh, September 2018. Photo courtesy of T.K. Shor (all rights reserved).	156
Figs. 70–71	A sample of the dütsi chömen made by Dudjom Rinpoche in Nepal in 1978 (fig. 70), originally wrapped in paper bearing Dudjom's seal and handwriting (fig. 71). Leh, August 2022. Photos J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	157
Fig. 72	Amchi Urgyen Chospel, date unknown. Photo courtesy of Amchi Nawang Tangyas (all rights reserved).	163
Fig. 73	Amchi Lama Rigzin, son of Amchi Urgyen Chospel. Nee, August 2022. Photo courtesy of T.K. Shor (all rights reserved).	163

List of Tables and Figures

Fig. 74	Amchi Tsering Paljor (back center) with Dudjom Rinpoche (left) and Dudjom Rinpoche's daughter, Tsering Penzom (front). Leh, 1975. Photo courtesy of Amchi Nawang Tangyas (all rights reserved).	163
Fig. 75	The old Nee gompa (bottom left) and Amchi Lama Rigzin's newly built monastery (top). Nee, August 2018. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	165
Figs. 76–77	The mendrup dütsi chömen made by Chatral Rinpoche in 1997, pressed into the form of four Vajrakilayas and one small Guru Rinpoche (fig. 76), and in granular form (fig. 77). Leh, September 2018. Photos courtesy of T. K. Shor (all rights reserved).	168
Fig. 78	Amchi participants of the 2018 mendrup . Nee, September 2018. Photo courtesy of T.K. Shor (all rights reserved).	170
Fig. 79	The Nee group of amchis after the mendrup in 2007. Nee, September 2007. Photo C. Blaikie (all rights reserved).	170
Figs. 80–81	Amchi Tashi Kundey makes Dali 16 with Nee mendrup dütsi chömen added as a papta . Katphoo, Ladakh, 2009. Photos C. Blaikie (all rights reserved).	171
Fig. 82	Amchi Lama Rigzin leaving Nee with his medicines. Nee, September 2007. Photo C. Blaikie (all rights reserved).	173
Fig. 83	Amchi Nawang Tsering's chongzhi -coated Drupril pills. Nee, Ladakh, August 2022. Photo J. van der Valk (CC-BY-SA 4.0).	196