

Acknowledgments

Ethnographic research and academic writing are collaborative efforts, particularly in team projects that cross multiple disciplines and fieldsites. We are grateful to the many individuals and institutions who contributed to our research and the making of this book.

We thank the European Association of Social Anthropologists (EASA) and PADMA AG for funding the 2016 workshop Potent Substances between Asia and Europe in Vienna. This laid the groundwork for us to develop the project Potent Substances in Sowa Rigpa and Buddhist Ritual, which was generously funded by the Austrian Science Fund (FWF) (P30804, 2018–2024). We thank Dr. Cathy Cantwell and Dr. Robert Mayer for their invaluable input on the proposal for that grant, which supported the development and publication of this book. The Department of South Asian, Tibetan and Buddhist Studies, University of Vienna, graciously hosted this project with support by Prof. Klaus-Dieter Mathes and Prof. Jim Rheingans. Calum Blaikie also acknowledges support from his FWF project Integrating Traditional Medicine: Sowa Rigpa and the State in India (P34010), hosted at the Institute for Social Anthropology, Austrian Academy of Sciences, and Tawni Tidwell is thankful for the support provided by the Center for Healthy Minds (project no. AAG8698), University of Wisconsin–Madison.

We are deeply grateful to the many amchis in India and Nepal who made our fieldwork possible, as well as those throughout Tibet and beyond who have provided invaluable mentorship, instruction, and guidance. This book would not exist if they had not so kindly shared their experiences and expertise and allowed us to observe their medicine-making practices. We sincerely thank Amchi Tsultim Gyatso, Amchi Nawang Tsering, and Lamenpa Penpa Tsering for generously sharing their knowledge, allowing us to work alongside them at their pharmacies, and discussing related medical texts. We also thank Dr. Arya Pasang Yonten and Sylvie Béguin for their guidance and support, as well as Khandro Lhamo Yangchen and Rigzin Choden for their research assistance in Kathmandu and Leh. Special thanks go to Prof. Sienna Craig and Dr. Katrin Jäger for establishing contacts in Kathmandu. We are grateful to Dr. Padma Gurmet and Dr. Tashi Stobgais at the National Institute of Sowa Rigpa for facilitating field visits in Ladakh, Amchi Lama Rigzin for welcoming us to the annual medicine consecration rituals in Nee, as well as the Men-Tsee-Khang in Dharamsala and Dr. Teinlay Trogawa, director of Chagpori Tibetan Medical Institute in Darjeeling, for ongoing support. Tawni Tidwell extends her gratitude to Dr. Khenrab Gyamtso, Dr. Jamyang Gyatso, Dr. Yeshe Gelek, and all Men-Tsee-Khang faculty and mentors, including for the kind instructions and medicine-making opportunities given to her class by Heads of Pharmacy Dr. Jamyang Tashi and Aku Tenzin Thayé. Lamenpa Tsewang Tamdin also provided invaluable teachings on tuning medical formulations for individualized patient care. In Amdo, she thanks the faculty and her clinical mentors at Sorig Loling and Qinghai Provincial Tibetan Medical Hospital, and particularly the late Gyayé Aku Nyima for bestowing his deep wisdom of clinical care and nuanced imbuing of potency. She is grateful to Drs. Rinchen Dhondup and Tsering Namjial for their close mentorship in Tibetan menjor paradigms related to Euroamerican science; Drs. Tashi Dhondup and Choying Rangdrol for their insights about taste, chemical spaces, and potency; principal menjor faculty Drs. Tsuntarjial, Tsiba, and Druktsé for their teachings; and Gen Lushamgyal and Aku Konchog Gyaltsen for their leadership; and Aku Jigme Tsondue of Tsekhok, Aku Tingdzin of Darlag, Dr. Dukar Tashi of Luchu, Dr. Tensung Drakpa of Nagchu, and Gansu Aku Nyima for sharing their therapeutic specialties and regenerating critical Sowa Rigpa menjor praxis for our times.

Acknowledgments

We acknowledge the insights of colleagues and the two anonymous reviewers who commented on previous versions of the book and its chapters. We thank all participants of the 2022 interdisciplinary workshop in Vienna, “Materiality, Agency, and Power: Crafting Potency in Sowa Rigpa and Ritual Practice,” for astute discussions that helped shape our analysis, especially Prof. James Gentry, Prof. Elisabeth Hsu, and Dr. Herbert Schwabl. We also thank the participants of the 2024 Vienna Sowa Rigpa academic writing workshop for their valuable feedback, especially Prof. Geoffrey Samuel (Chapter 3) and Mridul Surbhi (Chapter 4). We also thank Dr. Anna Sehnalova, Dr. Cathy Cantwell, Amchi Nawang Tangyas, and Prof. William McGrath for feedback on Chapter 5.

Final thanks to Jane Caple for her highly skilled and nuanced editing, the HASP team for layout and production, Amchi Nawang Tangyas for his assistance with Wylie transliterations of Ladakhi names, and Thomas K. Shor for his photographic expertise.