

About the Editors and Contributors

---

Annalisa Bocchetti  <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-0603-5848>

specializes in early modern Indo-Islamic literary cultures, focusing on vernacular Sufi narratives. With a PhD from “L’Orientale” University of Naples (2022) and an FWO postdoctoral fellowship at Ghent University (2022–2024), she now researches South Asian folk and oral traditions at “L’Orientale” University of Naples.

Winand Callewaert is an emeritus professor of Sanskrit and Hinduism at the Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium. He has conducted research in India since 1965, focusing on the devotional literature of the Nirguna and Saguna traditions, including Dadupanthi and Kabir. He has published numerous books and articles.

John E. Cort is Professor Emeritus of Religion at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, USA. His research focuses on religion, history, literature, culture and society in western India, especially Gujarat and Rajasthan, and especially on the Jains. He has published articles in several ICEMLNI volumes.

John Stratton Hawley  <https://orcid.org/0009-0000-6771-0275>

– informally, Jack – is Claire Tow Professor of Religion at Barnard College, Columbia University. His most recent book on India’s bhakti traditions is Krishna’s Playground: Vrindavan in the 21st Century (Oxford, 2020), which has recently been translated into Hindi as Kṛṣṇa Lilābhūmi (Rajkamal, 2022).

Monika Horstmann  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-4789-7842> retired as Professor of Modern Languages and Literatures of South Asia at South Asia Institute, University of Heidelberg. Her area of research is north India, with a focus on religious orders of Rajasthan, their literature, and the interface between religion and politics.

Heleen De Jonckheere  <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-9714-0250> is a scholar of Jain literature and the history of the Jains within the religious plurality of premodern India. Her research has focused on multiple language use by Jains involving Sanskrit, Prakrit, Apabhramsha, Kannada, and Old Hindi. She obtained her PhD from Ghent University, is currently appointed at SOAS, and will return to Ghent University at the end of 2025.

Anne Murphy  <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-0171-6003>

(Ph.D. Columbia) teaches in the Department of History at the University of British Columbia. Her work focuses on the Punjab region of India and Pakistan, with interests in language and textual cultures, the history of the Punjabi language, literary and religious community formations in the early modern and modern periods, oral history, commemoration, historiography, and material culture studies.

Hiroko Nagasaki  <https://orcid.org/0009-0005-5339-2903> is a professor of Hindi literature at the University of Osaka. Her research focuses on early Hindi devotional literature and Hindi metrics. Recent publications are the co-authored book Trivenī Texts of Three Literary Traditions in Early Modern Languages of North India. A Reader (2023) and ‘The Rhythm of Early Hindi Poetry as Reflected in the Piṅgala Literature’ (2024).

Kiyokazu Okita  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-6752-2802> is Associate Professor of Hindu Studies at Faculty of Liberal Arts and at Graduate Program in Global Studies, Sophia University. He is also a research fellow at the Oxford Centre for Hindu Studies. He is the author of Hindu Theology in Early Modern South Asia (Oxford University Press, 2014) as well as the editor of The Building of Vṛndāvana (Brill, 2024. Co-edited with Rembert Lutjeharms).

Rosina Pastore  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-6594-4577> is currently FWO postdoctoral fellow at Gent University (Belgium). She obtained her PhD in 2022 from the University of Lausanne (Switzerland) in Indian Studies. Her main domain of research is vernacular philosophical literature, which she investigates through primary sources in Classical and Modern Hindi, Rajasthani, and its interactions with Sanskrit knowledge systems. She is the author of Vedānta, Bhakti, and Their Early Modern Sources: Philosophical and Religious Dimensions of Brajvāsīdās's Prabodhacandrodaya Nāṭaka published by De Gruyter in 2024.

Heidi Pauwels  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-0919-0774>

is Professor at the University of Washington, Seattle. She has written two monographs on 16C Bhakti; a book comparing Sanskrit, early modern Hindi, and contemporary film and television retellings of the stories of Sita and Radha; and two volumes on cultural exchange in 18C Kishangarh art and poetry. A third volume has just appeared from Cambridge University Press: The Voice of the Indian Mona Lisa. She has been awarded Guggenheim, AIIS, and NEH fellowships.

Akshara Ravishankar  <https://orcid.org/0009-0009-3066-5066> is currently an FWO Junior Postdoctoral Fellow at Ghent University in Belgium. Her current research focusses on the interpretive histories of the Bhagavad Gītā in North India, and on exegetical writings in Sanskrit and early Hindi in the period between 1400–1800 CE.

Danuta Stasik  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-6885-9714>

– Professor of South Asian Studies at the University of Warsaw. Her research focuses on the history of Hindi literature, literary criticism, and the Rāmāyaṇa tradition. Her latest works include the volumes Oral–Written–Performed (HASP 2020) and Literary Cultures in Early Modern India (with Imre Bangha; OUP 2024).

Radosław Tekiela  <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-2710-8076>

is a former PhD candidate at the Doctoral School of Humanities, University of Warsaw. His research was focused on early modern romance in Hindi, and Islam in India.

Aleksandra Turek  <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-8431-1268> is an Assistant Professor at the Chair of South Asian Studies, University of Warsaw. Her research focuses on early modern Rajasthani literature and the Rajasthani language. She has authored publications on Rajasthan, including articles, book chapters, and the book The Three Jewels of the Desert (2012). Additionally, she is a co-author of Trivenī (2023).

Biljana Zrnic  <https://orcid.org/0009-0008-9794-8258>

is a visiting professor at the Department of Languages and Cultures at Ghent University. Her research focuses on early modern North Indian literatures, manuscript culture, and the community of Dādūpanth. Her recent publications include ‘Sūrdās’ poetry in the community of Dādūpanth’ (2024) and Reframing Traditions in Early Modern India (forthcoming, 2025).