

Note on Transliteration

In view of the fact that contributions to this volume have a number of words transliterated and transcribed from several Indian languages, and different methods are sometimes used by scholars of the same language, the editor has not attempted to devise a unified system that might be used throughout this publication. Instead, care has been taken to maintain consistency within individual chapters.

