History of Juvenile Delinquency in the 19th and 20th Centuries: East-West Comparisons

12 - 13 March 2011, The Centre for British Studies, Humboldt University, Berlin

The conference brings together scholars working in a variety of fields, including history, sociology and literary studies to explore the ways in which concepts of childhood, youth and delinquency have been shaped by specific cultural contexts. In particular, papers will explore the ways in which attempts to define and problematize child and youth behaviours have differed between East and West.
