China and Japan signed government documents in Beijing on two cooperative projects using Japanese aid totaling 1.847b Japanese Yen (about 15.185m US$) for environmental protection. Long Yongtu, chief negotiator of China's Ministry of Foreign Trade and Economic Cooperation (MOFTEC), and Japanese Ambassador to China Koreshige Anami signed the documents on behalf of their respective governments. The first project involves the development of environmental information network for 61 Chinese cities. China and Japan agreed to cooperate in the environment sector in 1997, and environmental information networks have been built in 39 cities by 2000. Under the new project, the Japanese government is to provide 1.051b Yen worth of computer hardware, database and analytical software. The aim of the project, sources with the MOFTEC said, is to improve China's environment monitoring system to back environment management and decision-making. The second project will use Japanese aid to plant trees in the middle reaches of the Yellow River, in the Ningxia Hui Autonomous Region. Trees will be planted on 4,200 hectares there in three to five years. The Japanese government will provide 796m Yen of aid to help collect seeds and buy equipment for the afforestation efforts. Regulation on the control of genetically-modified (GM) plants, animals and microbes in agriculture, approved by the 38th State Council Standing Conference on 9th May 2001. The regulation, which consist of eight chapters with 56 articles, will come into force on the day of promulgation. (State Council Decree No. 304, signed by Premier Zhu Rongji on 23rd May 2001) (Full text: RMRB, 7 June 01) China has promulgated this regulation, aiming to protect human health, ecology and the environment. The regulation is aimed at strengthening the control over the research and development, production, processing and trading of genetically-modified agricultural products, including plants, animals and microbes. The regulation calls for mandatory assessment of the safety of GM products and labelling of such products. According to the regulation, GM-related research institutions are required to have sufficient facilities and techniques to ensure the safety of their research and development of GM products. The institutions must apply to the state's agriculture administration department for safety certificates for their final products after completing productive experiments. Everyone who is to be engaged in production and processing of GM products must have approval from agriculture departments at the state or provincial levels. Products listed in the GM Product Catalogue must be properly labelled before they are marketed. The agricultural administration department of the State Council is responsible for approving the import of GM products, and quarantine institutions are responsible for inspecting and certifying non-GM products to be exported. The agricultural administration department of the State Council is also authorized to ban the production, processing and trading of any GM product that is found to have posed a hazard to human health, ecology and the environment. (XNA, 8 June 01)

Regulations on the Management of Dismantling and Relocating Urban Housing Units, approved by the 40th State Council Standing Conference on 6th June 2001. The regulations, which consist of five chapters with 40 articles, will come into force on 1 November 2001. (State Council Decree No. 305, signed by Premier Zhu Rongji on 13th June 2001) (Full text: RMRB, 21 June 01) The existing regulation, implemented on 1st June 1991, played an active role in strengthening the management of resettlement of urban dwellers, maintaining the lawful rights and interests of households and ensuring smooth construction of projects. However, the regulation needs to be revised to adapt to the resettlement of urban residents in the wake of further reform and market economy. (XNA, 7 June 01)

Rules and Regulations for Implementing the Patent Law of the People's Republic of China. They will become effective on 1st July 2001. (Order No. 306 of the State Council, signed by Premier Zhu Rongji on 15th June 2001) (Full text: RMRB, 27 June 01)

The rules and regulations for implementing the patent law are consisted of 122 articles in 11 chapters. They are, namely, general rules, application for patent, examination and approval of patent application, re-examination of patent application and invalidation of patent right, approval to enforce patent, reward and remuneration for inventors and designers of on-the-job inventions, protection of patent right, patent registration and patent bulletin, fees, special provisions for international application, and supplementary rules. Upon the implementation of the rules and regulations for implementing the patent law, the rules and regulations for implementing the patent law, which were approved and revised by the State Council on 12th December 1992 and were promulgated by the China Patent Bureau on 21st December 1992, will be annulled si-

Regulation for the management of recycling abandoned cars, adopted at the 41st meeting of the State Council Standing Conference on 13th June 2001. This regulation, which consists of 31 articles, will go into effect on the day of promulgation. (Order No. 307 of the State Council, signed by Premier Zhu Rongji on 16th June 2001) (XNA, 14 June 01; full text: RMRB, 26 June 01)

The Supreme People's Procuratorate (SPP) issued "The Six Regulations To Be Strictly Observed by Procuratorial Organs in Handling Cases" in an effort to prevent and reduce law-violation and discipline-violation phenomena in handling cases. "The Six Regulations" has provided for specific rules governing the procuratorial organs in handling clues for solving cases, in placing cases on file for investigation and prosecution, in closing cases, in reviewing, altering, or cancelling arrests, in reviewing cases for prosecution, and in enforcing the law as well, stating: All clues for solving cases shall be dealt with in a unified way, and no individual may deal with the clues without authorization, hide a case from higher authorities, and delay investigations into a case. All cases shall be placed on file for investigation and prosecution in strict accordance with the procedures for handling and placing cases on file for investigation and prosecution as provided for in the law, cases shall be closed in strict accordance with the relevant examination and approval procedures, and no case may be placed on file for investigation and prosecution or be closed in violation of the relevant regulations. All arrests shall be reviewed in strict accordance with the law, and after verifying the relevant criminal evidence, a procuratorial organ shall approve and carry out the arrest of the relevant suspects in accordance with the law, and shall take measures to guard against practices of not arresting suspects who should be arrested, and not cracking down on criminal activities with full force. An arrest may be altered or cancelled in strict accordance with the requirements and procedures provided for in the law, and no individual may wilfully alter or cancel an arrest without authorization. All cases for prosecution shall be reviewed in strict accordance with the law, and no procuratorial organ may decide not to prosecute suspects who should be prosecuted. All appeal cases shall be dealt with by two or more procuratorial officers in accordance with the law, and no procuratorial officer may meet an appellant in private or process an appeal case without authorization. A relevant responsible person of the SPP said: The SPP has formulated and issued "The Six Regulations" in an effort to ensure that all procuratorial organs will impartially enforce the law in a civilized way, and the procuratorial organs at all levels should handle all cases in strict accordance with "The Six Regulations," and investigate and punish procuratorial personnel found directly responsible for the violation of "The Six Regulations," and the leaders concerned. Census and Statistics Department of Hong Kong SAR.

CPI(A), CPI(B) and CPI(C) are compiled based on the expenditure patterns of households in the relatively low, medium and relatively high expenditure ranges respectively. A Composite CPI is compiled based on the overall expenditure pattern of all the above households taken together. The CPI(C) was formerly known as the Hang Seng CPI and was compiled by the Hang Seng Bank since 1974. Starting from the reference month of July 1999, the data collection and compilation work of the index have been taken up by the Census and Statistics Department and the index has been renamed as CPI(C).

(*) Including the net worth $ 197,072 million received from the trustees of the former Government of the HKSAR Land Fund at 1 July 1997.
