India (Aug 13?)

Ending four years of negotiations, India and China have exchanged notes on the bilateral consular convention's coverage of the Hong Kong and Macau Special Administrative Regions of China. The notes were signed here recently after the two sides reached agreement on the issues concerned, an official source said while describing the agreement as a forward step in bilateral relations. With this, India has become one of the three countries to have successfully concluded such an agreement with China, the source said. The consular convention defines the functions of the consular offices in both countries and the agreement gives certain privileges to the diplomatic missions. The earlier consular convention between China and India was signed on 13th December 1991 in New Delhi and took effect on 30th October 1992. However, Hong Kong's return to China from British sovereignty on 1st July 1997 and Macau's handover to China from Portuguese sovereignty on 20th December 1999 necessitated renegotiation of the bilateral consular convention, Indian embassy sources said. (PTI news agency, New Delhi, 13 Aug 01, in BBC PF, 14 Aug 01)
