PRC Laws and Regulations

Liu Jen-Kai

Regulations of the People's Republic of China Governing the Ranks of Customs Officers, adopted at the 32nd session the 9th NPC Standing Committee on 28 February 2003. The regulations will take effect upon promulgation. (Decree No. 85 of the PRC, signed by President Jiang Zemin on 28 February 2003) The regulations consist of six chapters with 23 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 1 Mar 03)

China has adopted a new regulation requiring Chinese customs officers to wear stripes indicating their rank on their uniforms, in an effort to increase efficiency in combatting smuggling and in handling checkpoint procedures. Under the system, customs staff will be ranked according to five grades - commissioner-general, commissioner, supervisor, superintendent and constable, as are China's policemen. The system is expected to instill a sense of professionalism and pride in the customs officers. It will also be easier for the public to supervise the performance of the officers, said an official with the General Administration of Customs. Customs officers are on the front line of the fight against smuggling and often find themselves in face-to-face confrontations with criminals, requiring a unified command structure, swift action, quick response and strict discipline, said the official. The adoption of the new ranking system for front-line staff may help avoid confusion and delays during emergencies. The system is also designed to increase efficiency at checkpoints and to facilitate quick responses to complex emergencies. Of the total of 43,368 Chinese customs officers, 79 percent are expected to be covered by the new system. The regulation was the 113th law adopted by the 9th

NPC and its Standing Committee, which will soon complete its five-year term. (XNA, 1 Mar 03)

A Composite CPI is compiled based on the overall expenditure pattern of all the above households taken together. The CPI(C) was formerly known as the Hang Seng CPI and was compiled by the Hang Seng Bank since 1974. Starting from the reference month of July 1999, the data collection and compilation work of the index have been taken up by the Census and Statistics Department and the index has been renamed as CPI(C).
