Editorial

As subscribers and regular readers of China aktuell – Journal of Current Chinese Affairs you will be familiar with the fact that we offer all our readers and a wider scholarly audience some additional information on our journal website. Updated and uploaded at the end of every consecutive month China aktuell Data Supplement as online-only publication provides a wide range of scholars and interested persons with valuable information on any change within the political leadership of the People's Republic of China from provincial level upwards, of Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan. Not only are leadership changes reported as soon as they occur, concise biographical information of newly appointed PRC officials are also provided. For background information on e.g. the newly appointed Acting Governor of Hunan Province, Zhou Qiang, please refer to China aktuell Data Supplement issue 9/2006 just published online.

In a second part we provide our readers with concise information on the content or full texts of new laws and regulations as well as agreements between the PRC and other countries or international organisations that could possibly all be covered by our in depth analysis of current Chinese affairs within the Documentation section of the print edition of our journal. In this edition for instance you will find information on the new PRC Regulation on Protecting Oceanic Environments from Construction Pollution as well as a MoU concerning Projects Assistant to Prevent and Cure Bird Flu between the PRC and Indonesia. Accompanied by regularly updated social and economic data on territories covered by China aktuell – Journal of Current Chinese Affairs this monthly supplement has long been regarded as one of the most valuable research tools for specialised scholars worldwide.

Moreover, our bimonthly Bibliography of Articles on Greater China has been added to China aktuell Data Supplement at the end of every even month. This bibliography arranged by topic provides China scholars with reliable bibliographical information on articles published in a large number of journals that are continuously analysed by our staff.

In our continuing efforts to better serve our readers and the scientific community in general, we now have decided to offer China aktuell Data Supplement and the bimonthly Bibliography of Articles on Greater China as two separate online publications. In order to better facilitate access to both publications, we will provide the web address on the front cover of every issue of China aktuell – Journal of Current Chinese Affairs. Both publications will be freely accessible without any cost. We would appreciate, if you could spread word for this service to scholars worldwide.
