United States (July 24)

Mineta signed an agreement on aviation with Yang Yuanyuan, director of the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China to expand flights in the booming market between the two countries and drop most restrictions on each other's airlines. (XNA, 24 July 04)

China's giant express mail company, Express Mail Service (EMS), faces increasing threat from its overseas counterparts since a newly signed China-US agreement has facilitated their entry into China's market. According to Beijing-based China Youth Daily, an agreement on aviation was jointly signed by US Transportation Secretary Norman Y. Mineta and director of the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China Yang Yuanyuan on July 24. The agreement said that the number of flights shuttling between the two countries will soar to 249 a week from the existing 54 within six years, among which 111 will be freight carriers, and transnational companies in freight distribution from the United States are allowed to set up freight forwarders in China. Federal Express (FedEx) and the United Parcel Service (UPS), leading companies in global express distribution, logistics and mail, had already filed applications for opening new flights approved by the agreement before its official signing. Statistics from China's Customs show China's EMS, as a part of China Post, took up 33 percent of China's international express mail market in 2001, but dropped to 29 percent in 2002, while other enterprises in the field claimed 67 percent of market share in 2001, which rose to 71 percent in 2002. Under a WTO commitment, China will grant unrestricted market access to foreign enterprises in express service by 2005. The annual production volume of this market is expected to hit 5b RMBY (600m US$) in China, which is a big business global enterprises would vie for, said experts. China will rank the fastest growing region in global freight industry in the next 20 years, with an estimated annual growth rate of nearly 15 percent, noted experts. (XNA, 28 July 04)

Zambia (July 05)

According to the bilateral framework agreement on cooperation in economy, trade, investment and technology, the two sides will establish a joint committee on economic and trade cooperation and launch a consultation mechanism. During his meeting with visiting GCC financial ministers and Secretary-General Abdul-rahman Al-attiyah, Chinese Minister of Commerce Bo Xilai proposed to begin the first consultation on FTA in September. Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao told the GCC delegation that China hopes to reach a FTA agreement at an earlier possible date. "Founding of such FTA will forge a more stable base for long-term cooperation and become a good example of South-South cooperation," Bo said. China-GCC trade surged from 1.5b US$ in 1991 to 16.9b US$ last year, expanded by 10 times, according to Chinese statistics. The GCC, involving Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, has become China's eighth largest trade partner, eighth largest export destination and ninth largest import source worldwide. China-GCC cooperation in construction, energy and two-way investment witnessed great progress but bilateral trade volume is still small compared with each side's total trade volume. Chinese garments, fabrics, electronic and telecommunication facilities and GCC's oil and natural gas and chemical products are of great need in each other's market. "However, the GCC members are rich in fund and we hope more GCC enterprises to invest in China, especially in hydropower, energy and mining, transport and telecommunication," Bo said. China is also willing to enhance cooperation with GCC in service trade, high-tech and labor sector, Bo added. (XNA, 6 July 04)

PRC Laws and Regulations

Liu Jen-Kai

The Chinese People's Liberation Army Regulations on Providing Combat Equipment Support for Combined Arms Units have come into force recently, according to an order signed by Jiang Zemin, chairman of the Central Military Commission. In eight chapters and 212 items, the regulations spell out guidelines and procedures to guarantee armament supply, saying that there will be different supply methods for different fighting conditions. The regulations said that the guarantee of armament supply for the combined arms unit is a component part of the unit's battle, which is of great importance to improving its fighting capabilities. In a bid to fully ensure the armament supply, it is imperative to follow the advice of the three generations of CMC's chairmen Mao Zedong, Deng Xiaoping and Jiang Zemin, the regulations stressed. (XNA, 24 July 04; Xinhua, 24 July 04, in BBC PF, 25 July 04)

The State Forestry Administration recently issued the Methods on Commercial Sand Control, to regularize profit-oriented activities by institutions and individuals to control the country's desertification. Institutions and individuals who have acquired the right to use the land of desertification will enjoy preferential policies including financial subsidies, lower-interest bank loans and tax reduction or exemption, according to the regulations. Interested parties should sign contracts with the owner of the land they are going to work on for profits, the document says. It also demands these units and people to send their application to authorities in charge of forestry. The latter should organize experts to check the feasibility of the applicants' sand-control plan. The regulations will go into action September Mainland police officers will be held legally responsible for the deaths of detainees or people being interrogated, under regulations set to take effect on 1 October. The Regulations on Continuing Interrogation, announced on the Ministry of Public Security web site on 3 August, are aimed at "protecting the legal rights of detainees" amid widespread public calls to redress current detention loopholes. Police responsibility will extend to detainees who commit suicide. ... Approved by Minister of Public Security Zhou Yongkang two weeks ago, the regulations set out the conditions under which people can be taken to police stations for questioning and the length of time they can be held. Under the existing law, promulgated in February 1995, police are required to release suspects after 24 hours of interrogation. If they want to hold a suspect longer, they must initiate a criminal detention period, which can last for 14 to 37 days. But the lack of detailed regulations has led to abuse of powers, such as prolonged detention and incidents where suspects reportedly commit suicide during detention, the ministry said. Police officers will be held responsible for deaths arising from lax management and illegal use of weapons and tools. Apart from bearing the legal responsibility, they will also be sacked and further disciplined. Further, pregnant women, breastfeeding mothers, teenagers under the age of 16 and people aged 70 or above cannot be interrogated for more than four hours at a time and should not be taken to detention rooms. The rules also require police to ask the families or guardians of suspects to take them home if they discharge them between 9 p.m. and 7 a.m. If none are available, the police themselves will have to take suspects home. ... (SCMP, 4 Aug 04)

The mainland will from October 1 enforce new interrogation rules in order to curb human rights abuses by police, state media said on 3 August. The new regulation standardised interrogation procedures, Xinhua News Agency said, citing an official with the Legislative Affairs Department under the Ministry of Public Security. The current law passed in February 1995 only gave a general definition of "interrogation" with no penalties for police who break it, the official said. Under the law, suspects can only be detained for 24 hours or 48 hours in certain circumstances after approval by police station heads. The unnamed official however said some police usually question suspects beyond the time limit and that suspects were detained in makeshift rooms. "Negligence in management and disregard of basic human rights has even left people being interrogated to commit suicide in these rooms." The new regulation would specify the target of interrogation, standardise procedures and set guidelines for the management of detention rooms, he said, according to Xinhua. ... Those who beat suspects to death, cause death of prisoners for any other abnormal reason or whose neglect leads to prisoner suicide would be fired and prosecuted, Xinhua said. Police authorities would also face severe punishment, the official said. Chinese authorities have pledged to clean up the law enforcement sector. In June a police officer was given a suspended death sentence and four others received jail terms for beating a detainee to death and burying his body in secret to avoid discovery, state media said. Last year 387 policemen were fired for misconduct and almost 1,000 prosecuted. China also dismissed 33,761 unqualified policemen in the August to November period last year as part of a clean up drive, state media reported. The Ministry of Public Security would also enact regulations on informing family members of detained suspects and preventing extended detention, the official said. Official statistics show China has 1.7 million policemen, a far lower proportion to size of population than developed countries. (SCMP, 4 Aug 04)
